Expertise Overview

Aaron Gross is an associate attorney on Partner Cliff Wilson's litigation team, where he focuses on personal lines cases, including personal and commercial automotive defense, Trucking and transportation, and traumatic brain injury claims.

Prior to receiving his Juris Doctorate from Gonzaga University School of Law in 2021, Aaron graduated from the University of Arizona in 2016 with a degree in Economics and a minor in Psychology.

Before joining Smith Freed, Aaron was practicing family law and criminal law in Grays Harbor County, Washington. Aaron predominantly handled divorces, child custody, parenting plans, property division, and gross misdemeanors, but he switched gears and looked for work that aligned more with his interests. Aaron likes being challenged, and he felt that criminal law and family law were too formulaic. After his initial interview at SFE, he was "blown away with how extensive SFE's practice is" and "was immediately drawn to fact that insurance defense applies to so many different areas of law."

Personal Life

Outside the office, Aaron enjoys an active and diverse range of hobbies, including playing video games, practicing guitar, skiing, fly fishing, hunting, swimming, reading, and collecting Lego sets. Raised with a deep appreciation for the outdoors, he regularly joins his family on fly fishing trips to Montana—and says that if he weren't practicing law, he'd still be a fly-fishing guide today.
