Expertise Overview

Kameron earned his J.D. from the University of Washington School of Law and gained valuable experience as a Rule 9 law clerk during his externship with the Torts Division at the Washington State Attorney General's Office. During this externship, Kameron argued a motion in King County Superior Court and defended numerous departments of the state, including Department of Corrections DOC and Department of Children, Youth, and Families DCYF. Kameron was the Editor-in-Chief of the Washington International Law Journal.

Kameron is an Associate Attorney and his expertise spans defense of institutions and personal injury law. Kameron approaches each case with compassion and understanding of the weight and importance that each case has for a party.

Personal Life

Kameron enjoys spending his free time cooking, playing beach volleyball, attending Mariners games, and going to local parks. Kameron grew up in the San Francisco Bay Area, and then moved to Seattle in 2019 to pursue his undergraduate degree.
